How gratifying to be able to begin "I told you so!"....

The last run sheet warned that the Ancient Mariner would have us all at sea; and there we were....

"We?" Not very many in that we; 30 at most. Now, the weather did give the impression of heavy rain, and namely by raining heavily; but when did that put off a true hasher? Surely you, gentle reader, would not allow such a thought to cross your mind? Especially as in fact the rain cleared up before we started, and we had a fine morning with sunshine and autumn colours.

But all at sea, certainly. I still do not know quite what happened; hashing happily along, composing with cunning craft the scintillating sentences needed for this report - rain-damped, rain-diminished poor melancholy particles of flour, that kind of thing - I heard Piercy denouncing the front runners for running in front, or at any rate calling when we could or should have been checking; and that really put the mockers on the whole shambang. By the time flour was again found the pack was in three contraposed entities: those slow enough or awake enough to bear Hare Eater call them back to the paths of virtue, who went one way; beat the conformists home. Since we did so - narrowly! - I here list them: Body Shop, Tee Total, Lord Raleigh, your scribe, the GM, Greenpeace, a female visitor from London, and Nipple Sucker. I have not made up this monicker; she acquired such a hash handle as an infant at the breast, and has agreed to stick with it as an adult hasher. Well, a lemonade hasher as yet, but resolute in very promising.

and this is harder than I had expected. The truth is partly that the blobs were so strangely laid that we really had not been aware of hashing backwards until the hare said so. Note however that despite all this confusion the words Hash Shit were never spoken.

The Circle was upgraded by the courtesy of our hares - the AM was celebrating a birthday, so we had Pusser's rum and a first class cake, while Hare Eater begins her retirement today. We sang in their honour, welcomed Scud, Featherlite, and our bemused London visitor - it seems they are less disorganised there - and then had the OnSex as RA's. I spare you what we said, since it all relates to the report you have just read.

We are also delighted to announce an imminent return: Hello How are you????? We are fine. We have a good news. Country Bumpkin He got job in London again. We haven't known about this. We are surprised very much.

Tomorrow He will be departure Narita to Heathrow. We will stay in London until this year. Takobelle. I can't go now. I must wait our cargoess. Now there are on the sea. But I will visit him and I will be able to join 1500th run. We are looking forward to meeting again.
